Instructional Development Experience

Teaching Practicum

Emory University, Fall 2000

Bi-weekly meetings with a faculty supervisor and other graduate teaching assistants to discuss teaching strategies, new teaching techniques, and address issues raised while teaching at Emory University.

Mentoring Workshop

Emory University, Summer 2006

Six session workshop for graduate students, postdoctoral fellows, and faculty to provide lessons on how to become an effective research mentor to undergraduate/graduate students. Specific skills taught include learning to communicate effectively with mentees, to work successfully with students of diverse backgrounds, to observe different approaches to mentoring, how to handle difficult or problem situations, and how to evaluate students' research-related work.

“Mentoring the Mentors” Workshop for HIV Researchers

University of California, San Francisco, January 2018

2 day workshop on tools and techniques to enhance mentoring skills, especially in regards to nurturing investigators from underrepresented backgrounds. Topics covered: How to teach time management to mentees, giving and receiving feedback, leadership training and styles, self-awareness, the individual development plan, tools to help in daily mentoring, unconscious bias, mentoring scientific writing and emotional intelligence in the mentoring relationship.
